

NEWS OF THE STAGE WORLD.

Louis Massen Leaves the Willard Company.

Manager Palmer Sees Willard as "Hamlet."

Louis Massen and his charming wife, Marie Burroughs, who during their stage career have never been separated, are now apart. Mr. Massen, it is reported, has left E. S. Willard's company, in which Miss Burroughs is leading lady. He was cast, it appears, for inferior parts, and his dignity could not endure that. A short time ago it was rumored that Mr. and Mrs. Massen were going to star.

A. M. Palmer, a cautious and conservative manager, journeyed to Boston to see the English actor, E. S. Willard, play Hamlet for the first time. "He devoted but three weeks to preparation," says Mr. Palmer, and was excessively nervous. Looking behind what he did, and recognizing what he intended to do, I could discern a striking, original and powerful conception," Mr. Willard will come to the Garden Theatre Nov. 20, a week earlier than he anticipated, if arrangements can be made. This would lengthen his engagement to ten weeks. He will first appear in "The Professor" and "The Girl in the Green Velvet." Mr. Willard probably sees his Hamlet later.

Managers out of town are in a great deal of a hurry to get their companies closing. A well-known Omaha gentleman has written to A. Dunlop, of the Dramatic News, begging him to publish a list of the already defunct organizations. They never notify anybody, and consequently when the time comes for them to fulfill their engagements, they are left in the lurch. The Dramatic News is making itself so popular among the profession just now that it is being hoped will come to the rescue of the out-of-towners.

It is said that Augustin Daly, Dan Frohman, A. M. Palmer and Uncle Sam French have all made offers for the American rights to a new play by Sydney Grundy called "Sowing the Wind," now running at the Comedy Theatre, London.

Marie Tempest and "The Alchemist" are booked for the Manhattan Theatre next month. The opera, however, opens at the Garden this week. If it prove successful it will be a new play by Sydney Grundy called "Sowing the Wind," now running at the Comedy Theatre, London.

"Utopia, Limited," the Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera, is the thirteenth of their favorite list, and superstitious managers will watch it with interest. The list includes, in chronological order: "The Pirates of Penzance," "Patience," "The Gondoliers," "The Mikado," "The Yeomen of the Guard" and "The Gondoliers."

IN THE WORLD OF LABOR.

John Lee is the new representative of Walters Alliance No. 9 to the Central Labor Union. At his last regular meeting, the Walters Alliance No. 9, which has twenty-three members, was re-elected.

The morning of the fourth annual Convention of the United Garment Workers opened its session in Rochester, N. Y.

A reception committee will be given by the Brooklyn Harpers' Association at the Brooklyn Hotel on Monday evening, Oct. 24.

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union has contributed $10 to the agitation fund of the Central Labor Federation.

United Machine Workers Union No. 2 has reorganized the Socialist Labor Federation as a bona fide labor organization.

The Public Committee of the Brooklyn Central Labor Union reported yesterday that the receipts from the Labor Day picnic were $1,000.

From the finance report of the Central Labor Federation it appears that last month the receipts were $187.50, while $165.00 was expended.

John M. Soden, of Local Assembly No. 822, K. of L., engineers, has been named as the speaker in the Central Labor Union at a salary of $1,300 a year.

Charles W. Werrell, Frank Jolly and H. White presented credentials to the Central Labor Union yesterday as delegates of Workers' Union No. 1. The credentials were referred to the Miscellaneous Section.

The headquarters of Progressive Carpenters Union No. 3 have been moved from Twenty-fifth street and Eighth avenue to Fifty-fifth street and Third avenue, where the regular meetings will take place every Thursday evening.

Cigar-makers' Union No. 13 has elected Isaac B. Berman, president; David Levy, secretary; M. Berman, treasurer; and J. Berman, vice-president. The regular meetings will take place every Thursday evening.

The Association of Engineers No. 2, I. O. E. 784, K. of L., has moved its headquarters to Madison Hall, Manhattan and Meador's avenue, where the regular meetings will take place every Saturday evening.

The Garment-Cutters' Trades Council has sent a number of letters to the Central Labor Union to advocate the election of labor delegates to the State Constitutional Convention. Among the speakers are Joseph Berman and M. Berman.

The Manhattan League of Ship Carpenters and Joiners is giving a party at the Manhattan Hotel on Monday evening, Oct. 24, for the benefit of the League. The party will be held in the ballroom and will feature a variety of entertainment.

The ratification meeting of the Socialist Labor Party will take place on Saturday evening, Oct. 28, at the Manhattan Hotel. The meeting will be held in the ballroom and will feature a variety of entertainment.

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond Wild. The facts of the case were, as he said, "dead against him."

Stanton lived in chambers in White's Inn and was reading for the Bar, Wild, who justified his name, was an old college acquaintance, who had adopted several times in life and failed in all. Gilbert had not seen him for several years, when Wild suddenly turned up at his chambers and announced that he was "stone broke."

The man had no claim whatever on

My life hangs on that scrap of paper. If it cannot be found, Edith, it is impossible to prove my innocence. The facts are dead against me.

"Gilbert, I am so confident that you are innocent, and all that you have said is true, that I will not rest until the paper is found."

He took her in his arms and impressed a passionate kiss on her brow.

Gilbert Stanton was under arrest on suspicion of having caused the death of Raymond